

Summer Session 2016 Questions and Answers

What types of financial aid are available to current Yale College students who take classes through Yale Summer Session?

U.S. Citizens and Permanent Residents

If you enroll in at least two course credits and you did not borrow the maximum Federal Direct Loan for your grade level ($5,500 for freshmen, $6,500 for sophomores, and $7,500 for juniors and seniors) during the 2015-2016 academic year, you may request a Federal Direct Loan for the balance of your eligibility.

If you have borrowed the maximum Federal Direct Loan, you may pursue funding through one of the available private loan programs. Most of the loans are based on credit worthiness and the ability to repay and therefore may require students to apply with cosigners. Please visit www.elmselect.com for information about private loans.

International Students

International students, including Canadians, may request an International (Yale) Student Loan.

What type of aid is available to applicants who are not current undergraduates at Yale University?

If you are not an undergraduate at Yale, you have a few credit-based loan options: PNC Solution Loan, Wells Fargo Collegiate Loan, and Citizens Bank TruFit Student Loan. For more information about these loans, please visit www.elmselect.com. You must still complete pages 1 and 2 of the 2016 Summer Loan Application. Questions about other forms of financial aid should be referred back to your home institution.

Is there any scholarship aid available for summer session?

The Yale Summer Session Office awards a limited number of partial tuition scholarships on the basis of both financial need and academic excellence. Student Financial Services does not award any gift aid for summer school.

May I receive financial aid if I plan to take classes at another college or university?

Not normally, but you may want to contact the financial aid office at the school you plan to attend to determine what funds they may have available.

What type of aid is available to Yale students studying abroad for the summer?

Freshmen, sophomores, and juniors receiving Yale Scholarship in the spring term and attending one of the designated International Study Award Programs (ISA) are eligible for an ISA award. The amount is based on the percentage of need as determined for the spring term. Detailed information regarding the ISA program can be found on line at www.yale.edu/isa.

If you are studying abroad through another school or program, there is no financial aid available through Yale, and Yale will not be able to certify any federal, state, or private grants or loans on your behalf.

Can my parents borrow on my behalf for costs associated with Yale Summer Session?

The supplemental loan program (Federal PLUS) is available to parents of Yale students attending Yale Summer Session, providing that the parent borrower is a U.S. citizen or a permanent resident and the student is enrolled in at least two course credits. Due to changes in the Federal PLUS loan program, we request that your parent call our office if they want to borrow a PLUS loan for your Yale Summer Session course.

How much can I borrow to cover my summer educational expenses?

The maximum you may borrow is directly tied to your cost of education. Refer to the Yale Summer Session website at summer.yale.edu/dates-costs for additional information about the costs associated with your plans. Expenses considered by Student Financial Services include: application fee, tuition, room, and meals, plus an allowance for books and personal and travel expenses.

Is there a deadline for applying for financial aid to attend Yale Summer Session?

The priority deadline for submitting a complete application is Friday, May 6, 2016. Applications will be accepted after that date, but we cannot give any assurances that you will receive a response before your classes begin if you miss the May 6 deadline.

If I attend Summer Session, it seems unlikely that I will be able to meet the Student Summer Income Contribution that Yale expects of returning students. What options do I have?

Because of the time and financial commitment to attend Summer Session, we understand that you may not be able to meet the Student Summer Income Contribution that will be part of your 2016-2017 Expected Family Contribution. You can request additional student loan(s) and/or term-time earnings to replace your Student Summer Income Contribution by contacting the Financial Aid Office.
